
Description:

The Samos Library Branch has been operating since 1987, i.e. when the Department of Mathematics was established. It is located in Karlovasi, and is housed in a restored neoclassical building constructed in 1903, the Hatzigiannio Girls School. The Hatzigiannio Girls School was constructed in the place of the former Porfyriada School and the Agia Sophia Church. Its construction was funded by industrialist and politician of the Samian State Giannis Hatzigiannis to house the Girls School that had been operating in Karlovasi since 1861. Founded in 1902, the Girls School was completed in 1905 and was named Hatzigiannio after its benefactor Hatzigiannis. It served as a school building throughout the years, except for the Greek Civil War period (1945-1949). In 1989, it was bestowed to the University by the Municipality of Karlovasi. The building was renovated according to plans drawn up by the architect of the University of the Aegean, Mr. K. Lapathakis, and started being used as the Department Library branch.

The Branch Building covers an area of approximately 920 sq.m. and includes two levels. The first level (ground floor) serves as a reception area and houses the point of service for users (counter) where the book searching, borrowing, returning and reserving services are provided. On the same floor, also housed are the offices where material is classified and processed, as well as special areas and stands for audio-visual materials and for the newly acquired materials.

There are four (4) user terminals to search available to users for searching. Further inside the same floor are a number of open-access bookstacks. In the right wing of the ground floor is the collection of journals with older issues (back issues) in movable bookcases. In the same area, a twenty-four (24) -user seating capacity is provided, along with two (2) laptops available to users for general use. In the left wing of the ground floor there are: a canteen and auxiliary rooms for the public, a photocopier available to users as well as reading and printout equipment for microfilm-microfiche. In a separate room near the other entrance of the ground floor collections of rare and historical material are kept: the Porfyriada School collection, the Panagioti Mageira collection, the Morali family collection and the Dimitri Valaskantzi collection.

On the second level (mezzanine floor) there is the rest of the collection of books and journals in open-access bookstacks. In the right wing there are stands with the current-year issues of all journals in the collection of this Branch. On this floor, a twenty-four (24)-user seating capacity is provided.

The collection of the Samos Library Branch consists of 34,130 volumes or 22,436 book titles (7,926 Greek titles, 13,581 English titles, 275 German titles, 535 French titles) , as well as 352 journal titles of which 31 titles are current subscriptions in print.

It also includes a collection of Gray literature completed at and submitted by the University Departments located on Samos, the collection of textbooks distributed to students of the Departments of Samos through the EUDOXUS programme, under the auspices of the Ministry of Education, as well as other special collections, such as: reference material (encycropaedias, dictionaries, guides), faculty course notes, audiovisual material, the Porfyriada School collection, the Panagioti Mageira collection, the Morali family collection, the Dimitri Valaskantzi collection, etc. The Library is organized according to the international classification and cataloguing standards. In particular, the Library materials are organized using the Dewey Decimal Classification System, the Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules 2 (AACR2) and the Library of Congress Subject Headings. The authority control is based on the Library of Congress Name Authorities and the Catalogue of Name Authorities of the National Library of Greece. Searching can be conducted in both the local collection and the union catalogue of the six (6) regional Library branches of the University of the Aegean. The branch also provides access to a large number of databases and journals.
